INH8.CPP - Aufweichen der private-Ableitung

```
#include <iostream>
using namespace std;
class base {
             void privB(){ cout<<"base privB()"<<endl; }</pre> private:
 protected: void protB(){ cout<<" base protB()"<<endl; }</pre>
             int p;
 public:
             base(int k=0):j(k),i(k),p(k){};
             ~base(){};
             void pubB(){ cout<<"base pubB()"<<endl; }</pre> void pubB(int){ cout<<"base pubB(i), i="<<i<<endl; }</pre>
             int j;
};
class derived : private base {
 private: void privD(){ cout<< "derived privD() "<<endl; }</pre>
 public:
          derived(int d):base(d){};
           ~derived(){};
          base::pubB; //hier als public !!
          base::j; //hier als public !!
          base::p;
       // base::i; //nicht moeglich !!
          void pubD(){ cout<<"derived pubD()"<<endl; }</pre>
};
void out(base &b){ cout<<"out"<<endl;</pre>
                    b.pubB();
                    b.pubB(5);
                   b.privB(); // kein Zugriff
                // b.protB(); // kein Zugriff
}
void main(){
        derived d1(1);
        d1.pubB();
        d1.pubB(2);
        cout<<"d1.j = "<<d1.j<<endl;
        cout << "d1.p = " << d1.p << endl;
     // base b5(d1);
                                     // Error, kein Zugriff!
     // base b6=(base)d1;
// base *b1=&d1;
                                     // Error, kein Zugriff !
// Error, kein Zugriff !
     // base &b2=d1;
                                     // Error, kein Zugriff!
        base *b3=(base *)&d1; // OK wegen cast (base *)
     // base &b4=(base)d1; // Error, kein Zugriff !
     // out(d1);
                                     // Error, kein Zugriff!
        out((base &)d1);
        cin.get();
}
```